NOTE

The useful article by Albert R. Frey, on the Dated European Coinage prior to 1501 (American Journal of Numismatics, 1913, pp. 1-92), appeared too late to be consulted in the preparation of this volume.

INTRODUCTION

THIS book is a development of a paper which was read to the Society of Antiquaries of London on April 14, 1910, and printed in Archaeologia, Vol. LXII. My thanks are due to the President and Council of that Society for allowing me to republish the paper in a revised and much augmented form, and for placing at the disposal of the Clarendon Press the blocks of the original Tables and Illustrations.

The object of the compilation may best be described by explaining how it originally came to be undertaken.¹ The date 1481, which occurs

¹ The bare references which are made here and there to friends and correspondents, who have assisted in the collection or verification of material, are wholly inadequate to express the measure of my indebtedness; and some kind offices may, I fear, have escaped even that meagre acknowledgement. Nevertheless I must content myself here with a brief gratiarum actio to those who have placed me under very special obligation, such as Mr. C. R. Peers, to whose encouragement the undertaking and completion of the task are mainly due; Mr. J. A. Herbert, who from the beginning spared no pains to note material which might be (and always was) of service, and gave me particular facilities for working at it; the late Mr. Max Rosenheim, whose knowledge of German seals, coins, and medals was of great service; Dr. Kurt Regling, of Berlin, who took infinite pains in connexion especially with my inquiries about German seals, a subject on which I also owe much information to Dr. August Ritter von Loehr of the Vienna Museum; Prof. David Eugene Smith, of Columbia University, recognized as a high authority on the archaeology of mathematics; Herr G. H. Lockner of Würzburg, to whom I owe a great deal of material, especially from that neighbourhood; Mr. Mill Stephenson, who has noted examples from brasses; Dr. George Macdonald, of the Scotch Education Office, to whose inquiries are due some interesting examples from Scotland; Mr. H. B. Walters, who has placed his great knowledge of English bells at my disposal; and M. J. A. Blanchet, whose bibliographical notes on the subject have been very useful. The deficiency in Italian examples, which was so evident in the first edition of these tables, has been largely repaired by the unfailing kindness and energy of Col. G. B. Croft-Lyons; other examples from the same country have been noted by Messrs. W. Ashburner, Wood Brown, and Eric MacLagan, as well as myself. An interesting series of MS. examples from Scotland has been provided by Messrs. R. K. Hannay and C. W. Yule, of the Edinburgh Register Office. In spite of the fact that these are nearly all after 1500, they were too interesting to be omitted. Signor A. Cappelli, of the Archivio di Stato at Parma, has courteously allowed me to compile the whole of Table XIII from his excellent

(Table LVIII. 15) on an Italian medal of the Sultan Mahomet II, by Costanzo of Ferrara, happened to be called in question. On inquiry it became clear that there was no reason to suspect this particular date on the ground of the forms of the numerals. But it was equally clear that there were other problems of the same kind more difficult of solution, and that the only way to approach them with any hope of success was to collect and classify as large a mass as possible of securely dated instances of the use of these so-called Arabic numerals. As always happens, the material proved to be a thousand times more plentiful, and by no means less difficult of verification, than he who light-heartedly undertook the research had supposed.

I do not wish to depreciate the work of my predecessors, to even the most casual of whom I am indebted more than I can say; but I have found no example of a systematic treatment of this subject in English, and only one, of a limited sort, in a foreign language.

What is now offered, in the shape of just 1000 classified examples, is nothing more than a vindemiatio prima. In hardly any of the numerous classes in which, with deep sense of the inadequacy of the classification, I have arranged the materials, can I claim to have collected anything like a fully representative series. And it would have been absurd to attempt, within the limits imposed by time and space, to envisage more than one aspect of the question. The mathematical history of the numeral system is outside my scope, even were I competent to deal with it. The whole problem as to the source through which these Indian numerals, if they are, as they seem to be, Indian, came to the West, has been avoided except for an incidental reference. That problem is the subject of numerous learned monographs, and any one who wishes to gain acquaintance with this perplexing subject may be referred to the very useful introduction thereto which has recently been published by D. E. Smith and L. C. Karpinski.¹ The present paper

Dizionario delle Abbreviature. Mr. Lewis Evans has kindly placed at my disposal the evidence furnished by his splendid collection of mathematical instruments. Dr. Paul Ganz, of the Basel Museum, generously lent me his note-books; hence the large number of Swiss examples which (may I be forgiven!) I have included in the German tables. These scholars, in the acknowledgements appended to the instances which they have supplied, are sometimes represented merely by their initials, which, however, will easily be identified from the details just given. I should like to add here my thanks to the reader of the Clarendon Press.

has nothing to do with these numerals before they were established in the West, but, once so established, seeks to show their chronological and local distribution in a somewhat clearer fashion than is possible without a large collection of grouped facsimiles. It is perhaps unwarrantable to call them facsimiles. Only a highly skilled draughtsman could do justice to the nuances of the forms. But for reasons into which it is unnecessary to enter, nothing better was to be had than the rude penmanship which is reproduced in these Tables. 'And with this sword,' let me hope with Chaucer, 'shal I slen envie.'

In its original form, as published in Archaeologia, this essay was provided with fifty-one Tables. The number is now increased to sixty-four. It has unfortunately been impossible, for various reasons, to incorporate all the new instances each in its proper chronological place in the old Tables. Such incorporation could not have been neatly effected without re-drawing the whole series. Consequently the new material has all been collected in Supplementary Tables; only the old Tables XLVI and XLIX-LI have been broken up and their contents incorporated in new ones. This arrangement is doubtless not ideal, but it is, so far as I can see, the only one that the circumstances permit. The reader will not, for instance, find all the instances in chronological order; but, except in rare cases, he will not find in the supplementary tables anything which contradicts the evidence of the old ones, so that the old can be used in order to obtain a general idea of the development of the forms, and afterwards checked for details with the help of the new. I have done what I can to ease the working of the system by means of cross-references.

In some ways it would be best to let the Tables, with the brief descriptive notes, speak for themselves. A few general remarks, however, may be of service, to explain the classification, to note certain instances which are omitted from the Tables, and to indicate certain lines on which further research might, one hesitates to say with profit, be made.

And first, as to the limits of the inquiry. As a general rule, I have tried to sweep into my net everything earlier than 1500 that came my way. But after that date I have exercised selection. Sometimes I have gone far into the sixteenth century; other Tables will show little after about 1510. The fact is that the instances become innumerable possibility that his MS. is of the sixteenth, rather than of the eleventh century. Mr. Lewis Evans called my attention to this paper: Variétés arméniennes, in Mélanges asiatiques tirés du Bulletin de l'Acad. Imp. des Sciences de Saint-Petersbourg, V (1864).

after 1500, and many reasons conspired against including much after the time when the use of Arabic numerals had become universal.

Secondly, since it has been quite impossible to verify everything, the mere fact of my inserting any example in the Tables must not imply that I guarantee its existence at the present time. I fear that much that Gough or even Wright described may have disappeared by now.

The first sixteen Tables deal with manuscripts, under which heading are included a few dates on drawings. These manuscript instances are arranged for the most part according to their date; but it has seemed convenient to make here and there certain departures from strict chronological sequence. Notably, in Table I are grouped together the earliest instances of the numerals as used practically in the modern manner, and also a number of examples of the forms assumed by the Boethian apices. These signs, used in reckoning on the abacus, although clearly for the most part, if not altogether, derived from a similar source to the signs used in algorism, assumed highly fanciful forms, and did not develop logically. Also, as the method with which they were associated ceased eventually to be used, and as they never occur outside manuscripts, they lack interest from the point of view of this paper; yet it seemed desirable to record those instances which were found in the course of search for other things.

In the remaining Tables (II–XVI) the examples from MSS. are grouped as far as possible century by century; certain Tables contain groups which stand on the border lines and might be given by one authority to the end of one century, and by another authority (or by the same authority at a different time) to the beginning of the next. But within each century or chronological group an endeavour has been made to keep the MSS. of local schools together. Thus in Tables VIII foll. all the fifteenth-century instances are collected, but the English are kept together in VIII and IX, the German in X, the Italian in XII and XIII. This plan has the advantage of sometimes bringing out local characteristics very clearly, such as the 7-like German 5, the English o of the middle of the fifteenth century, shaped like a Greek ϕ , the early upright Italian 4, and so on. Table XIV gives a few instances of Arabic numerals from Greek MSS.

The dating of these MSS., it should be stated, is not based on the forms of the numerals. They have been dated, for the most part by expert palaeographers, either according to substantial evidence, or by the general style of the writing. Nearly all the British Museum examples have been submitted to members of the staff of the Department of MSS., whose monumental forbearance under exceptionally trying circumstances it would be unpardonable not to record.¹

The traps which beset the unwary in the dating of the MSS. are of course innumerable. The assumption that the date given for the composition of a work is the date at which the MS. was written, is obviously hazardous; incautiousness in this matter has produced not a few 'early' instances of Arabic numerals. Such are the dates 1136, 1217, and perhaps 1245, which have been read in MSS. supposed to be contemporary.²

The numerals are first found in MSS. of the tenth century, but they cannot be said to have been at all well known until the beginning of the thirteenth.³ During all this early period there is, perhaps naturally, considerable uncertainty in the forms, as a glance at Tables II and III will show. One group, of the end of the twelfth or the beginning of the thirteenth century (Table II. 5, 6), seems to be derived from an Eastern Arabic source, whereas the derivation of the more usual forms from Western Arabic is fairly well made out. But even here (cp. the 3 in Table II. 6, third row) one finds a fusion of the Eastern and Western forms.

In tracing development, especially in MSS., one is hampered by the fact that a scribe, copying from a MS. of a century or so before his time, may, if he is not familiar with the notation, reproduce forms which had really gone out of fashion. If he were much accustomed to use Arabic numerals he would be less likely to do this. This I think is the explanation of a very puzzling set, or rather sets, of numerals in a MS. of the late thirteenth century (Table V. 1). I confess that had I come across this MS. at the beginning of my search, I should have thought twice before going on. Here we have in use, alongside of a fully developed form of 2, a form like a pruning-hook, of which the only other instances which I have found are in MSS. of the twelfth, or, at the latest, early thirteenth century (Table II. 2, 3). Then there is a very curious form of 3, like the pruning-hook 2 with an added line through it, alongside of a well-developed modern 3. To complete our perplexity comes a fully developed upright 7, beside the ordinary lambda-shaped form. The MS. contains elaborate astronomical tables, and the solution of the confusion probably is that the scribe was compiling from various MSS. It might be said that, if that were so, we should find the peculiar forms confined to certain columns, and not used along with the ordinary forms; but if he were familiar with only these ordinary forms he would be likely to intrude them here and there.

² See the list of doubtful examples at the end of this introduction, p. 21. I may mention here some remarkable series of numerals which are given in the Barddas of J. Williams ab Ithel (1862), at pp. 112, 113. Unfortunately (as I learn from Prof. Ifor Williams and Prof. J. Morris Jones), so much doubt exists as to the value and authenticity of the MS. sources, that I have thought best to exclude them bodily. My attention was called to them by Mr. W. E. A. Axon.

The upright 7 occurs in the tenth-century MS. which comes at the very beginning of the Tables; also in the two MSS. already mentioned as showing the pruning-hook 2 (Table II. 2, 3; in the latter we have also the lambda-7); in a MS. at Siena which has been dated to the thirteenth century (Table IV. 8); in an Italian MS. at Florence (Table VII. 16) which is generally admitted to be of the early fourteenth century, and which also shows the upright 4 and is indeed, so far as the numerals are concerned, extraordinarily advanced. After that, I have failed to find any instances until after 1400 (see Table XI). Yet the inquirer need not say in despair that he can find no rule, numerusque fertur lege solutis: these upright 7's are quite exceptional, and the occurrence of one in a MS. is prima facie reason for suspecting a comparatively late date. If these exceptions serve to impress upon us the truth that scientific exactitude is not attainable in palaeography, they will do no harm.

The forms that afford the best criteria are 2, 4, and 7; next comes 5, but it is the most freakish of all figures, and therefore a little untrustworthy. The others are practically negligible.

Allowing for exceptions, it may be said that the three-stroke form of 2, as opposed to the old 7-shaped form, does not appear before the second half, and is quite rare before the end, of the thirteenth century. The transition is well seen in an English MS. of about 1300 (Table V. 7). By the middle of the fourteenth century the old 7-shaped form has practically disappeared (see, however, Table VI. 9).

As to 4, there are a few examples in which a slight lifting of one of the legs gives to the old form an appearance of the modern (e.g. Tables IV. 2, VI, 16). These are, however, hardly misleading. The early instance in the Florence MS. (Table VII. 16) has already been mentioned. The transition to the upright form begins very gradually after the middle of the fifteenth century in England (the latter half of Table VIII shows this clearly). Italy, however, is far ahead of other countries in this respect, showing a fully developed modern form both in monuments and in MSS. quite early in the fifteenth century. In Germany, the earliest certain instance appears to be a seal of 1461 (Table XXXIV. 3).¹

Of 7 I have already spoken.

5 shows many fantastic forms, but the general character of the sign is the same. A curious intrusion of a Roman V into the Arabic series is shown in an early thirteenth-century MS. (Table IV. 2). This is of interest in connexion with the probability that what we call the Arabic 5 was an adaptation of the late Roman form.²

The 7-shaped German form of 5 is well illustrated in Table X. In MSS. it is superseded early in the sixteenth century by the more modern form; elsewhere it lasts longer. It is of course an intelligible development from the older form; but as soon as the upright 7 became established, it had to disappear. The instances analysed in Tables X and XXIII ff. illustrate the conflict.

The series given in Table XIV from Greek MSS. are derived partly from Eastern Arabic, partly from Western sources. No. 2 is exactly the same as the series in the eleventh-century Chartres MS. (Table I. 7). Nos. 3 and 8 are purely Western in appearance, save for the inverted 7 in the latter. Nos. 1, 4, 5, and 6 point to an Eastern Arabic origin; note the circular form of 5 in two of them, and with some of the forms (2, 3, 4, 5, 7) compare those in the Berlin MS. (Table II. 6).

After the MSS. I have placed series from British monuments. Although the material is scanty, and I have by no means collected all the known instances, it is not out of a merely false patriotism that I have placed them first. The Wells numerals (Table XVII. 1) are among the most interesting, and probably the earliest to be found anywhere outside MSS., even if we allow that fashions of epigraphy are apt to change more slowly in monumental than in manuscript work. The upright 7 from Elgin (XVII. 4) might possibly be traced to foreign influence; but Mr. Peers' suggestion, that the whole inscription is later than it professes to be, affords a more probable explanation. The tendency to assimilate numerals to letters is noticeable in dates such as that of 1503 from St. Cross (Table XVII. 12) or that of 1534 from Ecclestone (Table XVII. 20), and more especially in some of the brasses in Table XX. The h-shaped 5 is found reversed in a date in Brading Church, Isle of Wight, which has been read M1d13, but which, as Mr. Peers points out, is really \overline{A} (for Anno) 1513 (see Table XIX. 7).

² Found, e.g., on coins of Justinian I, struck in A.D. 541-2 (W. Wroth, Brit. Mus. Catal. of Imperial Byzantine Coins, i, p. 31, no. 56). Mr. G. L. M. Clauson reminds me, however, that a form much like this late Roman 5 was used with the same value in India in the thirteenth century.

Pages could be filled with instances of doubtful, misread, or misinterpreted dates on English monuments. Some of them will be found in the 'black list' at the end of this introduction (p. 21).¹

Next follow the examples from Germany and German lands, more especially Austria. The evidence from the latter country is very plentifully published in the Mitteilungen der kaiserlich-königlichen Central-Commission für Erhaltung und Erforschung der Baudenkmale, the First Series and the Neue Folge, which I have abbreviated as M.C.C. and M.C.C., N.F. I have found no periodical giving such plentiful illustrations of monuments from Germany, with the result that examples of the use of Arabic numerals may seem to occur more frequently in Austria, as compared with Germany and other countries, than is really the case. Of the two countries, Germany and Italy, it is racially characteristic that while the Germans seem to be ahead in the practical use of the numerals, the Italians lead the way in the development of their forms. The fact that France produces hardly any examples cannot, I think, be wholly due to the accidents of search or publication.²

German examples are also well represented because it happens to have been a German who published the most elaborate study of the whole subject which has hitherto appeared. Mauch, in his articles in the *Anzeiger für Kunde der Deutschen Vorzeit*³ for 1861, deals very fully with the German evidence, drawn from architectural monuments, seals, etc. He has, however, little to say about MSS., and even his monumental instances are mostly drawn from a comparatively limited district. His articles are, nevertheless, the only serious attempt known to me at a systematic treatment of the subject.¹

¹ English dates which I have not found time or opportunity to verify or use, but which should be included in any corpus, are 1483 and 1494 from Fountains, 1489 and 1494 from Ripon, all with the old forms of 4 (Notes and Queries, ser. iv, p. 375). Mr. H. B. Walters informs me that early dates (for bells) occur on bells at Greystoke, Cumberland (1524), Wood Ditton, Cambridge (1544), and Elmley Castle, Worcs. (1559, now recast). The iron scutcheon plate on the south door of the nave at Rendcombe Church, Gloucestershire, has six signs, of which the first, second, fourth, fifth, and sixth might be read as 10 417; but the third can hardly be explained as a figure. See Arch. Journ. vi. 291.

² The coins of René II of Lorraine should perhaps have been tabulated as French with more justice than where they have been placed (Table XLIII. 12, 14).

³ Hereafter usually referred to simply as Anzeiger.

The dated German seals² are among the most interesting and also the most treacherous examples with which we have to deal. In Germany and in Austria, in the second half of the fifteenth century, it became quite the fashion for any person or corporation, to whom a grant of arms had been made, to place the year thereof on a seal of later date.³ There are, however, undoubted instances of the use in the fourteenth century, which will be found in the Tables. Some doubtful examples will be found in the list on pp. 21 ff. under the years 1235, 1320, 1408, 1410, 1439, 1449, 1488.

Tables XXXV, XXXVI record a few German examples from miscellaneous objects, some quite late, but interesting because of their fantastic forms.

The reproductions of examples from German paintings (Tables XXXVII-XXXIX), as of those of Italy and the Low Countries, have been taken for the most part from the facsimiles in the official catalogues of the collections mentioned. These sources, supplemented by a few notes made by myself and various correspondents from actual pictures, ill represent the mass of interesting material which this class of objects affords.

In Tables XLI, XLII woodcuts, metal-engravings, and printed books have been lumped together, perhaps not very scientifically.³

² A list of dated seals from 1369 onwards is given by Mauch in Anzeiger (1860), pp. 13 ff. See also E. Melly, Beiträge zur Sigillographie, and the various volumes of the M.C.C. referred to in the descriptions of Tables XXX-XXXIV. Outside Germany early seals with Arabic numerals are very scarce. The only instance from Holland that I have been able to include is the Dordrecht seal of 1482, which, perhaps somewhat unfairly, I have tabulated with the German examples (Table XXXIV. 6). England, curiously enough, offers an isolated example as early as 1410 (Table XXII. 4). G. Demay, Inventaire des Sceaux de la Normandie (1881), p. vii, gives 1503 (Philippe de Clèves, Seigneur de Ravenstein), 1511 (Denis, Abbé de Loos), and 1515 (George, Duke of Saxony) apparently as the earliest instances of the use of Arabic numerals for this purpose known to him! For some information as to German seals I have to thank Dr. E. Gritzner of Weimar; he notes, for instance, the seals of the city of Munich of 1478, and of Weissenhorn in Bavaria ('S' civium in Wessenhoren 1476') Dr. Theodor Hampe has kindly enabled me to obtain reproductions of a certain number of seals in the Germanisches Nationalmuseum at Nürnberg.

The list of examples from printed books might of course have been made very much larger, but with doubtful profit.

The series of Swiss coins, and of coins, jetons, and medals of the Low Countries, are in various ways interesting; the former (Table XLVI. 1) as affording the earliest known instance of a Western coin proper dated in Arabic numerals;¹ the latter as showing a fairly continuous run of dates from the last quarter of the fifteenth century onwards, and illustrating the reluctance of the old forms of 4 and 7 to disappear.

The forms of the numerals 2, 3, 4, 5, which occur on certain rifacimenti of the famous late fourteenth-century medal of Constantine seem to me to belong to the early sixteenth century, and to be Flemish. Cp. Num. Chron., 1910, pp. 115 f.

In connexion with these examples from the Low Countries I may notice the puzzling dates on the Flemish tapestry of the 'Triumph of Chastity' in the Victoria and Albert Museum, to which Mr. Maclagan has directed my attention. The date 1507 (with the lambda-7) is quite normal, and suits the style of the work. But on the same piece is a date which can as it stands only be read as 1570 (with the modern 7). Since there is considerable space between the 7 and 0 it may be that the bottom stroke of a Z-shaped 2 was omitted in weaving, as Mr. Maclagan suggests, in view of the carelessness or illiteracy that is elsewhere perceptible in the inscriptions. The date would then be 1520, representing the date of the completion of the work. Other explanations suggest themselves (as a mistake of 1570 for 1507), but they are less probable.

It is convenient here to note the graceful instance (1456) from the portrait in the Liechtenstein Collection, formerly attributed to Jean Fouquet, but now rather to the school of Jan van Eyck (fig. 1¹).

Table LIII includes a few medals, some of which are French, others perhaps Italian, while even in those which are certainly French, Italian influence is strongly felt.

Tables LIV-LVI are compiled, as I have already indicated, chiefly from official catalogues.² Table LVII is mainly from Fortnum's Majolica. Tables LVIII and LIX, on the other hand, are nearly all compiled from original medals, plaster casts, or good photographic reproductions. Research has confirmed much that seemed doubtful in this group; thus the Carrara medals, dated 1390, are now definitely proved to be contemporary.³ The incised dates on Table LVII: 5, 6 cannot be doubted. The appearance of the old form of 4 in Table LVIII. 12, 13 is explained in the notes to the Table.⁴

Italy affords one of the most striking instances of the necessity of some such collection as I have endeavoured to make: the date 800 on the sarcophagus of Pagavus Petrasanta at Milan, which is obviously and without question of late origin.⁵

A curious problem is presented by the 1470 reproduced in fig. 2. The numerals are incised on the sole of the right sandal of a statuette of Marcus Aurelius on horseback, a copy of the famous statue on the Capitol.⁶ The statuette (which is in the Vienna Museum) has been

³ See especially Guifrey in Rev. Num. (1891), pp. 17-25, and J. von Schlosser in Jahrb. d. kunsth. Samml. des A.-H. Kaiserhauses, xviii (1897), pp. 64 ff.

⁶ I am obliged to Ritter A. von Loehr for the photograph from which the illustration is made.

ascribed to L'Antico,¹ although the date creates serious chronological difficulties. However, in his splendid monograph² on L'Antico, Dr. H. J. Hermann definitely discards the attribution to L'Antico, chiefly because of the date. He urges that the figures must represent a date, not an inventory-number, since few collections at that period could have contained so many as 1470 objects of this kind. I may add that an inventory-number would be incised after the object had been acquired for the collection, whereas these figures have the appearance, at least in the photograph, of having been incised in the soft material of the original model. It is just conceivable that it was an opus-number, incised by the artist at the last moment before casting. The point, however, which chiefly concerns us at present, is this: if this is a fifteenth (a fortiori a sixteenth) century Italian bronze, how come these archaic forms to appear on it; forms that had long vanished from Italian arithmetic, unless the evidence marshalled in this paper contains even more serious gaps than I had suspected? There is nothing northern about the style of the bronze, although it is difficult to judge of such a matter in a close copy of an antique. Perhaps the most probable solution is that it is the work of a northern artist who had settled in Italy, but had not acquired the Italian style of writing.

Dr. Hermann points out that the statuette may have been made in connexion with the repairs to which the statue was subjected in the reign of Paul II. These were begun in 1466, and as the work was still unfinished in 1470,³ the statuette may well be connected with the restorer's task. But whatever be the explanation of the numerals, analogies must be found before we can accept them as having been incised by an Italian in the fifteenth or early sixteenth century.

The Italian engravings and printed books do not offer much of interest, but the Italian reproduction of a German date in Table LX. 8 is worth noting.

Table LXIII should be used with great caution, both the authorities on which it is based, Rottiers and Belabre, being untrustworthy. But I could not bring myself to exclude the evidence from this outpost of Western culture. Italian influence was evidently strong there. As the knights left the island in 1522, it is improbable that any of their inscriptions were restored; the more is the pity that good facsimiles are wanting.

Finally, a few notes on certain peculiarities of notation may not be out of place.

The change of direction in writing numerals, from the old one of right to left to the modern one of left to right, is illustrated by a few cases. One is given by Hale, Domesday of St. Paul's (p. xiv): 'Tabula Registri de Visitatione Maneriorum per Robertum D. . . , anno domini m. cc. xxii.' Here the folios are numbered with Arabic numerals, written originally from right to left, the numbers . . . afterwards struck out, and a fresh series written in nearly the same character, but from left to right. Uncertainty as to whether they are contemporary with the date given has prevented their inclusion in the Tables.

The mixture of Roman and Arabic numerals is very common. In addition to instances which will be found in the Tables, I give the following from MSS.:

Mabillon (de re Dipl. t. xv, p. 373, ed. 1681) gives the following example of chapter-numbering ('ex cod. Cavensi in cujus initio monachus Benedictinus crucem ferens pingitur'): 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. x. xi. x2. x3. x4. xxx. xxxi. 302. 303. xxx. 401. 405.

145vj for 1456: Cappelli, Dizionario, p. 423 (Cremona).

An unusually interesting example is the wood-cut representing the seal of John, priest of St. Moritz in Augsburg, with date $\Lambda^{\circ} \text{M}^{\circ} \text{CCCC } 7$ (the 7 being of the lambda form). Libri, Mon. ined., pl. lii; Schreiber, Manuel, 2039; Catal. 42. The original block of this is in the Hof-Bibliothek, Munich. Prints of these were used by John as an ex-libris, e.g. in books of circa 1472 and 1475. The date thus appears to be meant for 1470; the years of the decade might be added by hand. It cannot mean 1407. On this point, Mr. Scholderer writes: 'The little paragraph in Latin written by John the priest first occurs in what I suppose is the earliest edition, printed at Augsburg by J. Bämmler, 18 December, 1472, of Jo. Cassianus, Die 24 goldenen Harfen, translated by Jo. Nider. In this edition, however, no mention is made of the writer; the German paragraph setting out how "der wirdig herr Meister hanns pfarrer zu sant Mauricien zu Augspurg" was responsible for it seems first to occur in an edition printed at Augsburg by A. Sorg, 21 June, 1484. It was afterwards copied in Bämmler's 1488 and M. Schott's (Strassburg) 1493 editions.'

The mixture of words with Arabic numerals is also not unknown; but a peculiar instance is 3's for 'tres': 'habuit 3's filios' in a MS. (Brit. Mus. Cotton. Nero A ix. f. 64) towards the end of the thirteenth century (soon after 1278). The same MS. shows frequently a mixture of Arabic and Roman numerals.

The example from Mabillon shows the notation 302 for 32. Of the same kind is the date anno dni. 1000. 300. 80. 4° in a MS. in the Plimpton Collection (D. E. Smith, Rara Arithmetica, p. 444). The forms 610 (for 16) and the like (see note on Table IV. 1) are curiously systematic, evidently assuming that the numbers would go up to 100 at least. Less logical, but easily to be understood, are the following:

15011 on a majolica tile in the Civic Museum, Turin. Wallis, Italian Ceramic Art: the majolica pavement tiles of the fifteenth century, fig. 66.

15013. Date in colophon of Confessionale of S. Antonino, printed at Paris. Communicated by Prof. Pernice from a copy at Greifswald (No. 910). See Wattenbach⁴, p. 105.

As a modern parallel to these it may be worth mentioning that in a letter from a resident in Rome I read that 'the Vittorio Emanuele Monument, like everything else, has got to be ready for the celebrations in 19011'.

LIST OF SOME ERRONEOUS OR DOUBTFUL DATES IN ARABIC NUMERALS

800. Sarcophagus of Pagavus Petrasanta at Milan. Obviously of late origin. Illustrated in F. Burger, Gesch. des florent. Grabmals (Strassburg, 1904), p. 34.

1007. On a gravestone at Katharein near Troppau. Universally rejected. M. C. C. xi (1866), p. xlvii; Anzeiger (1876), p. 34.

1084. Castle Acre Priory. See under 1480.

1133. The Helmdon mantelpiece, a stock subject for discussion in the eighteenth century (Philosophical Transactions, 1731, i. fig. 55, at p. 190), supposed by many to bear the date 1133, cannot from its style have been earlier than the late fifteenth century. There was a somewhat similar oak chimney-piece at Widel Hall, Herts., perhaps of 1516 (op. cit. 1735, p. 119), though the 16 has been explained as 1. 6.

1136. MS. See E. de Terreros y Pando, Paleografia Española (1758), p. 102, pl. 12 (530 of the Arab era). This is the date of the composition of the original work; the MS., so far as one can judge from an indifferent facsimile, appears to be of the thirteenth or fourteenth century.

1190. Anzeiger (1876), 34; Denzinger, p. 165 f.

1198. Anzeiger (1876), 34; Denzinger, p. 165 f.

1206. On blade of a sword in the Germanisches Museum, Nürnberg. Anzeiger (1881), 229. Not a date.

1217. MS. See E. de Terreros y Pando, op. cit., p. 97, pl. a. The script is certainly later.

no. 1.) Seal of Gottfried von Hohenlohe. See Anzeiger, 1861, p. 48; 1866, p. 265; 1871, p. 261 f.; Albrecht, Die Hohenlohe'schen Siegel des Mittelalters, no. 6; Fürst Hohenlohe-Waldenburg, Sphragistisches Album, Beilage A zu Hohenlohe; G. A. Seyler, Abriss der Sphragistik, p. 28. No original impression is known; but there are or were two examples of the matrix in the Fürstlich Hohenlohe-Neuensteinsches Kunst- und Raritäten-Cabinet in Kirchberg a. d. J., one in copper, the other in silver; both 0.5 cm. thick and smooth at the back. Both matrices are the same, but one is better engraved than the other. One of these matrices seems to be mentioned as early as 1644. No other seals of the thirteenth century dated in this fashion are known. The work is extremely good. It has been suggested, in explanation of the early occurrence of these numerals, that Gottfried was frequently in Italy. That is no explanation, since the numerals would be as surprising in Italy as in Germany. The Trinity College, Cambridge, MS. (Table III. 1), supposing it to be rightly dated, shows that the forms of 2 and 3 are just possible in the first half of the thirteenth century. But I have found no other instance of this form of 2 so early. If the last figure is a 5 (and it can hardly be, as Seyler reads it, a 3 reversed, seeing that the engraver had just made one the right way), I can find no parallel to it until the sixteenth century, when it is furnished by the Brensbach date of 1526 (Table XXVII. 12). The possibility of this seal being a forgery of the sixteenth century must therefore not be overlooked. It is strange that two matrices are known, but no ancient impressions.

1245. MS. Bibl. Strozzi, mentioned in nearly all the old treatises on the subject without verification, but doubted by modern authorities. It must be admitted that there is nothing improbable in such a date.

1265. On a bell at North Wootton near Wells (W. E. A. Axon, Proc. Manchester Lit. and Phil. Soc. 1876, pp. 173 ff.); is for 1625, as, Mr. H. B. Walters assures me, is proved by the work.

1298. On an armorial slab (S'. Ser Lapi Bonamichi et filiorum eius de Ghiaceto) in the Berlin Museum. The slab is much later in date. (Information from Mr. A. F. Gow and Dr. K. Regling.)

1299. This, which appears to be a sculptor's mark on a gravestone of the Count of Katzenellenbogen, in the Schlossgarten at Biberich, seems to be very doubtful. [The only illustration I have seen is in Hefner-Alteneck, Trachten, i. Taf. 27.]

1302. Anzeiger (1876), 34; Denzinger, pp. 165 f.

1308. Tomb of Bishop Maggi in the Rotonda, Brescia. Not contemporary.

1319. Relief of God the Father in Mus. of Hist. Verein von Unterfranken, Würzburg. Denzinger, pp. 166 f.

1320. Seal of Trostberg (see figure 4, and for the whole design, Archaeologia, lxii, pl. XIX, no. 8). The wax impression from the Germanisches Nationalmuseum, Nürnberg, shows clearly that we have to do with a sixteenth-century seal. With the looped forms of the numerals compare those in Table XXVII. 4, 15. The seal is mentioned in Anzeiger (1866), p. 265; by G. A. Seyler, Abriss der Sphragistik (1884), p. 28, and elsewhere, without suspicion.

Fig. 4.

1322. On a piece of artillery (which was in existence at Mantua down to 1849). Illustrated and accepted as genuine by Rocchi, L'Arte, ii (1899), p. 348.

1327 (Fig. 5). On the church at Weissenburg im Nordgau (Mittel-franken). The contemporaneity of this is with justice doubted by Mauch, Anzeiger (1861), p. 81. Cp. the 1439 of Table XXIII. 4.

1331. Seal of Heidingsfeld-am-Main, Anzeiger (1859), 249; Archaeologia, lxii, p. 180; here Table XXX. 1. Mr. G. H. Lockner confirms my suspicion, expressed in the latter place; the date is a subsequent addition. See Heffner, Würzburgisch-Fränkische Siegel, in Arch. des Histor. Vereins v. Unterfranken u. Aschaffenburg, xxi, pp. 168-169.

1371 (Fig. 6). Schlosskirche, Pforzheim. See Anzeiger (1861), p. 83. The evidence as to this is highly unsatisfactory. Herr E. Wagner of

Fig. 6.

Karlsruhe, who kindly made inquiries for me, elicited the fact that an inscription in memory of Luitgard Gölndenerin with this date is now painted on the wall of the church; but it is uncertain whether it was always painted on the wall, or whether when the church was restored in 1880 the plaster was laid over the possibly still existing slab. The inscription is given by Gehres, Kleine Chronik von Pforzheim (Carlsruhe, 1811), p. 30. It is clear that the forms as they now stand are useless; but even those given in publications earlier than 1880 seem to me very doubtful for the date.

1377. Engraved on back of a fifteenth-cent. matrix of seal of Church of St. James below Cripplegate. Formerly in Dimsdale Collection (Sotheby's Catal., June 6, 1913, lot. 26).

1381. On a reliquary in the shape of a head of St. Mark, in the Abbey of S. Salvatore, Mte. Amiata. Restored. Photograph from W. A.

1384. German wood-cut (Schreiber 1943). Refers to date of the miracle represented.

1393. Monument of von Reinstein at Würzburg. Salver, p. 247.

1393. The figures 1393 on a brick illustrated by Sir Rider Haggard in A Farmer's Year (1906), p. 323, and since presented by him to the British Museum, appear from their style to date from the seventeenth century at the earliest.

1396. Inscription of Antonio di Giuliano Bianchini et suorum, in Opera del Duomo, Florence. Not contemporary.

1398. This supposed date at Constanx is not contemporary, the context showing that the inscription cannot be earlier than 1462. See J. Marmol. in Anzeiger (1861), pp. 268 f.

1407. Monument of Gottfried v. Wirsberg. Salver, p. 453.

1408. 'Sigillum Universorum Civium in Marchekk.' Melly, Beiträge, pl. i, and p. 37. Melly says 'the work shows that the date 1408 cannot refer to the making of the seal, but to a renewal of the grant of arms, or else, more probably, it arose from an engraver's mistake for 1480'.

1410. Seal of Gars. Written 14x (with the old form of 4). M.C.C. xix, p. 88. Not contemporary.

1410. A curious puzzle is presented by this date (Fig. 7), which was published in the Antiquary, XXXVIII, p. 258, as from the brass of John de Campden at St. Cross, Winchester. No such date is to be seen on that brass, and all inquiry has failed to elicit an explanation. Either the facsimile given is a clever invention, for the forms are most plausible, or the person who sent it to the Antiquary has confused his notes as to the provenance of the date. It ought to be inquired into, as, if genuine, it (with the Fountains seal,

Fig. 7. Reproduced by permission of Mr. Elliot Stock.

Table XXII. 4) is the earliest English instance of the kind, saving the Wells numerals.

1418. Wood-cut of the Madonna at Brussels (Schreiber 1160). Not earlier than 1460.

1423. Buxheim engraving of St. Christopher (Rylands Library); probably not before 1440.

1437. Wood-cut (Schreiber 1684): refers to the grant of the indulgence.

1439 (see Archaeologia, lxii, pl. XIX, no. 2): Seal of Otto von Henneberg, Germ. Nationalmus., Nürnberg. This is the identification given in Anzeiger (1859), p. 250, but the date is queried. The last digit looks like a 4. Further, Otto V, the only one who can be in question, was only two years old in 1439. He died in 1496. The date is almost certainly 1484. The inscription is 'S. oct. von Gots gnade g̃ve und her v. henbg'.

1440. Seal of Grätz of 1509; 1440 is the year of the grant of arms (Melly, p. 83).

1440, 1448, on two wood-blocks, refer to composition of the writings they reproduce. (Dodgson, Catal. of Early German and Flemish Woodcuts, p. 8 note.)

144 . Wood-cut (Schreiber 1637): refers to the canonization of S. Niccolò of Tolentino.

1449. Seal of Markt Veldkirchen. M.C.C., p. cxxxiv. This has the modern 4, and looks altogether more modern than the date.

1455. Medal of Francesco Sforza (Armand, Médailleurs Italiens, ii. 26. 1). Not contemporary.

1470. Huntly Tomb in Elgin Cathedral. See Table XVII. 4.

1479. Schaumünze of Maximilian and Mary of Burgundy bearing the date 1479, and the ages (19, 20) of the pair; this is a later reproduction, based on the contemporary medal by Candida.

1480. Castle Acre Priory. The most ludicrous things have been written (J. H. Bloom, Castle and Priory at Castle Acre, p. 25) about a cruciform arrangement of figures here, which might conceivably be meant for 1480 but is certainly not so early.

1481. Medal of Christian of Denmark (Armand, iii. 166, C). Restored.

1485. Occurs on a brass (of John Pulter) in a slab on an altar-tomb (of earlier date) in the north chapel of Hitchin parish church. The forms (modern 4 and 5) show that the numerals are later than the alleged date [Rubbing communicated by Mr. Murray Kendall].

1485. Medal of Aimar de Prie [see Table LIII. 1].

1488. Medal of Francesco Seivandi (Armand, iii. 157, B). False.

1488. Medal of Francesco Accolti (Armand, ii. 51, 16). False. (See Rev. Num., 1895, p. 460). The form ω for 8 comes in towards the end of the sixteenth century.

1488. On a seal of the city of Baden (Lower Austria) commemorating the siege by the Turks in 1529. The date is meant for that of the Wappenbrief, but should be 1480. It has the upright 4. A similar seal with the right date, 1480, was engraved in 1566. M.C.C. ix, p. v.

1489. On a bell at Eglingham, near Alnwick, mentioned by W. E. A. Axon, Proc. Manchester Lit. and Phil. Soc. 1876, pp. 173 ff. This is in Roman numerals.

1489. This date, given by Haines from a brass at Fressingfield, Suffolk, is in Roman numerals.

1490. On the brass of Wm. Fordmell, Vicar of Borden (Belcher, Kentish Brasses i, p. 12); cannot be contemporary.

1498. Medal of Ser Ceccone de' Baroni (Armand, ii. 74. 4, and iii. 170, A). False. Burlington Magazine, Oct. 1909, p. 31.

1498. Medal of Gioacchino della Torre (Armand, ii. 71. 10). False. Burlington Magazine, Dec. 1912, p. 132.

1500, 1503. Medals of Georges d'Amboise (Armand, ii. 142. 14, 15). Restored.

1508. The signs which have been so read on a bell at Rayleigh, Essex (Deedes and Walters, Church Bells of Essex, p. 40), are probably not numerals at all; the third sign looks like u or n. The reading Ihus (for Jesus) has been suggested, but is unlikely. Ihns for Johannes seems to have even less in its favour.

1517. Medal of Ladislas VI of Hungary (Armand, iii. 209, A). Restored.

1519. On two pieces of Gubbio ware (Fortnum, p. 29). Suspiciously modern.

1521. Medal of Pietro Vettori (Armand, ii. 97. 17). False.

NOTE.—The tabular arrangement of this volume will, it is hoped, partly compensate for the absence of an index. An attempt to construct one showed that nothing short of repeating the whole of the contents in index-form would be really useful.

DESCRIPTION OF THE TABLES

TABLE I. MSS.: EARLIEST FORMS AND BOETHIAN APICES.

1. 976. Escorial d I 2. Codex Vigilanus, written in the year 976 in the monastery of Albelda near Logroño. See P. Ewald, Neues Archiv der Gesellsch. f. alt. deutsche Geschichtskunde, viii (1883), p. 357. Cp. Smith and Karpinski, p. 138. The forms are described as the Indian figures, quibus designant unumquemque gradum cuiuslibet gradus. Quarum hec sunt form(e): 987654321. Ewald connects the form for 5 with the Roman V. Since he does not say that the year 976 is that of the Spanish era, we must assume that it is of the usual Christian era.
2. X c. Zürich, Universitätsbibl. (St. Gall MS.). See Pertz, Archiv, vii (1839), p. 364. Cp. G. Friedlein, Gerbert, die Geometrie des Boethius und die indischen Ziffern (Erlangen, 1861), pl. vi. 13. From fol. 50^r of Angilberti carmen de Karolo M. Pertz describes these as the earliest Arabic numerals known to him.

Berlin, cod. lat. fol. 307, ff. 6, 9, 10, 28. Astronomical tables. French. See Bethmann in Pertz, Archiv, viii. 832; Wattenbach⁴, p. 103; V. Rose, Verzeichnis d. lat. Hdschr. der kgl. Bibl. zu Berlin, ii, p. 1177, no. 956. The figure which is given by the earlier authorities as 2 is interpreted by Rose as 4, and vice versa. So far as the 2 is concerned, the earlier interpretation is confirmed by the preceding MS. in this table and by Arabic analogy. Dr. Regling has very kindly examined the MS. for me, but this point was not in question at the time.

TABLE III. MSS.: XIII CENT.

1. XIII c. (1st half). Trinity Coll., Camb. (M. R. James, Catal. ii, no. 940, p. 355). The numerals are given under the words Igin, Andras, Ormis, etc., with the Roman equivalents written after each. [From drawing by Mr. Z. N. Brooke.] 2. c. 1230-50. B.M., Eg. 2261, f. 225 b. Algorism. English. 3. XIII c. B.M., Add. 25031. English. 4. 1246. B.M., Royal 8 A. viii, f. 105. Note of purchase of the book. English. 5. XIII c. (about middle). B.M., Royal 3 A. v, f. 67 b. English. Dated by some to late XIII or early XIV. 6. XIII c. (2nd half). B.M., Arund. 292, f. 107 b. English. The numerals are drawn laboriously, as if they were unfamiliar. 7. XIII c. (2nd half). B.M., Arund. 332, f. 68. Joh. de Sacrobosco. English (Durham). 8. XIII c. (after 1264). B.M., Add. 27589, f. 28. Algorism. English. Smith and Karpinski (p. 143) say that this MS. contains the date 1360, to which year they (apparently in error) accordingly assign it. The hand is pure XIII cent. 9. c. 1280. S. C. Cockerell Collection, English Bible (probably York). Cp. Proc. Soc. Ant. xxi (1906), p. 201 (where the forms have been somewhat schematized). 10. XIII c. (late). B.M., Royal 12 E. xxv, ff. 32-59. This scribe uses Roman numerals for all above 9, also sometimes ix. The early form of 2 occurs only once (f. 33). Probably English. 11. XIII c. (late). B.M., Harl. 2385, ff. 26-31 b. Probably English. 12. XIII c. (late). B.M., Royal 12 E. xxiii, f. 2. English. 13, 14. XIII c. (end). B.M., Royal 12 C ix. Joh. de Sacrobosco, Computus. Probably English. The diagrams (14) are in a different hand, perhaps that of a more skilled mathematician than the copyist of the text.

TABLE XIV. MSS.: GREEK.

1. XIV c. Neophytus. From Friedlein, Gerbert, etc., pl. vi. 9. See P. Tannery, Le scholie du moine Néophytos sur les chiffres Hindous. Rev. Arch. iii. sér. 5 (1885), pp. 99-102, where this note on the ἀριθμοὶ Ἰνδικοί or περιστικοί is described from two Greek MSS. at Paris, 1928, f. 15 (XV cent.), and 2350, last folio (XVI cent.).
2. XIV c. Maximus Planudes. Friedlein, Gerbert, etc., pl. vi. 10, from an excerpt. On the MSS. of the ψηφοφορία see C. I. Gerhardt, Das Rechenbuch des M. P. (Halle, 1865); cp. Tannery in Rev. Arch. 1886 (i), pp. 357 ff.
3. XIV c. Cod. Marc. 534 (formerly 303). Maximus Planudes, ψηφοφορία. Villoison, Anecd. Gr. ii, p. 153 and plate at p. 267. This and the next MS. were kindly examined for me by Mr. W. Miller. They come from Cardinal Bessarion's library.
4. XV c. Cod. Marc. 639 (formerly 323). Maximus Planudes, ψηφοφορία. From Villoison, Anecd. Gr. ii, p. 153 and plate at p. 267. Must be earlier than c. 1470, since it was in Cardinal Bessarion's library.
5. Planudes, according to Tannery, Rev. Arch. 1886 (i), p. 359.
6. XV c. Cod. Marc., fondo Nani, 255, fol. 182 b. Scholium (in same hand as text) on Tetrabiblos of George Pachymeres. Rev. Arch. 1886 (i), p. 357.

11. c. 1524. Quodlibetarius, MS. Erlangen, no. 1463. From Friedlein, Gerbert, etc., pl. vi.
12. 1545. Plimpton Coll. Italian, written by 'Ludovicho Alt de Salispurga'. Business arithmetic. D. E. Smith, Rara Arithm. p. 485. The numerals are rather Italian than German.
13. c. 1560. Plimpton Coll. Italian commercial arithmetic (Florentine). D. E. Smith, Rara Arithm. p. 489. With the recumbent 8 compare the forms in a MS. of 1684 (ib. p. 441), or in the date 1628 as signed by the Dutch painter Pieter de Grebber on a picture at Stockholm (no. 448). The same form occurs on various late false medals, purporting to belong to the XV cent. (see black list, p. 25, under 1488, 1498).

- 4-12. Drawings by Urs Graf in the Basel Museum. (U. 10. 39, 43, 44, 50, 51, 75, 76, 80, 85); all from tracings by Dr. Paul Ganz.
13. c. 1525 (1522 or soon after). B.M., Nero A xiiii. Dutch Chronicle of Monastery of Horn, Communicated by Mr. D. T. B. Wood.
14. 1526. Viennese. Rechenbüchlein of Christof Rudolff. In the Viennese wine-cellars, the casks were marked according to their contents with figures of the forms given. Monatsblatt der numismatischen Gesellschaft in Wien, vii (1906), p. 132.
15. 1543. Letter (in a scribe's hand) from Matthew Earl of Lennox to the Queen Dowager.
16. 1544. Letter (with autograph signature) from Earl of Angus to Lord Maxwell.
17. 1545. Lord High Treasurer's Accounts.
18. 1548. Letter (in a scribe's hand) from Patrick Earl of Bothwell to the Queen Dowager.
19. 1553. Letter (in a scribe's hand) from the same to the same.
20. 1553. Letter (in a scribe's hand) from Janet Beaton Lady of Buccleuch to the Queen Dowager.
21. 1557. Register of Priv Seal, Vol. 28.

25. 1586. Methodi sive compendii Mathematici libri iv aut. Joanne Geddaeo Scoto. St. Andrews. Drawings by owner, Dr. Hay Fleming, communicated by Mr. Hannay. Geddy apparently desired to become a Secretary to James VI and did this little book as a show piece. Dr. Fleming and Mr. Hannay think, from the similarity of style and execution, that Geddy must have taught writing to Charles I and Elizabeth of Bohemia.

TABLE XVII. BRITISH MONUMENTAL, ETC.

1. Series of numbers from Resurrection images on West front of Wells. Somersetshire Archaeol. and Nat. Hist. Soc. Proc. xxxiv (1888), p. 62; Proc. Soc. Ant. 1906, xxi, p. 201. Mr. Lethaby has shown that the 2 is of the 7 shape; the numerals cannot therefore be later than the early XIV cent. The only difficulty is caused by the second form of 5. This is hardly possible in the XIII-XIV century. It may be a misread 3 or 6, and should be re-examined. Smith and Karpinski, p. 142, say that these numerals are 'undoubtedly considerably later' than the 13th century, but do not discuss the question.

2. 1445. Inscribed stone in tower of Heathfield Church, Sussex. Journ. Brit. Arch. Assoc. ix, p. 433; Wright, Essays, ii, p. 76. The stone is much worn, and the reproduction in the older authorities (from which the reproduction in the table is taken) shows a suspiciously modern form of 5. The accompanying illustration (Fig. 8), based on P. Lucas, Heathfield Memorials (Humphreys, 1910),

Fig. 8 (By permission of Messrs. P. Lucas and W. C. Alexander).

3. 1448. On wooden lych-gate, Bray Church, Berks. Arch. Journ. 1850, p. 75.

4. 1470. Elgin Cathedral. Tomb of first Earl of Huntly in St. Mary's aisle. Rubbing in Library of Soc. of Antiquaries. Communicated by Mr. J. Cooper Clark, of Ladyhill. Both 5 and 7 look strange; Mr. C. R. Peers has recently examined the inscription and doubts whether it is of the date.

5. 1487. Belfry door of Piddletrenthide, Dorset. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 85.

6. 1487. Wooden door at Arminghall. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 77.

7. 149? Eeverley, on pavement near S. side of Earl of Northumberland's Monument. Gough, Sep. Mon. ii, 2, p. 309. The last figure is broken away.

8. 1490. Colchester. The lower part of the 4 being defaced, this has been read as 1090. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 78.

9. 1493. Stone in wall of cottage in remains of episcopal manor-house at Bishop's Waltham, Hants. Arch. Journ. 1850, p. 76.

10. 1494. Tower of Hadley Church, Middlesex. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 79.

11. 1498. On a shield in the hall of Milton Abbey. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 86.

12. 1503. St. Cross. On stone. This occurs twice, once in the Porter's Lodge, once in the 'Nun's Room'. Arch. Journ. 1850, p. 76; Journ. Brit. Arch. Assoc. ix, pl. xxxiv.

13. 1504. Arms of James IV of Scotland. On a buttress projecting from the W. side of the crowned tower of King's College, Old Aberdeen. Proc. Soc. Ant. Scot. xxiii, pl. i (p. 80). Communicated by Mr. W. Kelly.

14. 1509. Stone from London Bridge, found in 1758. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 80.

15. 1514. Milton Abbey Church. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 86.

16. 1524. On tabernacle at Kinkell Church near Inverurie. AND. DRI. 1542. MEORARE A. G. The initials are those of Alexander Galloway, 'Official' of Aberdeen and Rector of Kinkell. Trans. Aberdeen Ecclesiol. Society 1889 (1890). From a photograph communicated by Mr. W. Kelly. There is another stone dated 1525 in the same place.

17. 1525. On the screen of Winchester Cathedral. Journ. Brit. Arch. Assoc. ix, p. 434.

18. 1527. Stoke Charity, Hants; Waller tomb. Ib. p. 435.

19. 1531. Stone from E. battlements of vestry of church at Enfield. Gough, ii (1), p. 140, pl. xlix*.

20. 1534. Beam in a roof of Eccleston Church, Lancs. Communicated by Mr. C. R. Peers. The assimilation of numerals to letters is very marked.

21. 1537. Wooden seat in Aldham Church, Suffolk. Wright, Essays, ii, p. 81.

TABLE XIX. BRITISH MONUMENTAL (SUPPLEMENTARY).

- 1, 2. 1429, 1457 (?) Corstorphine. Cut on the W. ingoing of the priest's door on the S. side of the chancel. Mr. W. Kelly, who sends these, refers to MacGibbon and Ross, iii, p. 254, for the statement that the church was begun in 1429; possibly the second date, which would seem to be 1457, is of its completion. 3. 146(?)7. Wraxall, Somerset. Tomb of Sir Theobald Gorges. Tracing by Miss A. Fry, who refers to G. S. Master, Collections for a Parochial History of Wraxall (Somersetshire Arch. and Nat. Hist. Soc., 1900). Master remarks (p. 91) that the third numeral, which looks like a 2, is really 6 reversed. The date of Sir Theobald's death is given in nearly all old writers as 1468. 4. 1485. On Isbury's Almshouses, Lambourne, Berks. (Rubbing, Soc. of Antiquaries). Communicated by Mr. Mill Stephenson. The 5, which is imperfect on the rubbing (but not on the original), is of the h-shape usual at this time in England. 5. 1489. On painted panels in south aisle of Choir of St. George's Chapel, Windsor. Communicated by Mr. W. H. St. John Hope. 6. 1489. Northleach Church, cut in the stonework of the S. transept. [Drawing by Mr. C. F. Bell.] 7. 1513. Brading, I. W. Cut on stone in niche behind pulpit in the church. Communicated by Mr. Percy Stone. This has been read Mld13, but the M really is an A, and the top bar of this letter has run into the top of the following I making it look like l; while the supposed d is an h-shaped 5 reversed. 8. 1514. Rusco Tower, Kirkcudbrightshire. [Photograph from Mr. A. O. Curle.] 9. 1522. Windsor. Below the paintings on north side of Oxenbridge Chapel, St. George's Chapel. Communicated by Mr. W. H. St. John Hope. 10. 1537. Falkland Palace, on columns. Scottish Antiquary, iv (1889), p. 148. 11. 1541. Oxford, Panelling in Hall of Magdalen College. [Drawing by Mr. C. F. Bell.] 12. 1542. Exeter Cathedral. Tombstone in floor of St. Andrew's Chapel. 13. 1544. St. Andrews Cathedral Museum; in relief on stone originally hewn for the castle in Cardinal Beaton's time. [Drawing by Dr. Hay Fleming.] 14. 1565. St. Andrews, Townhall; in relief on stone from old Tolbooth. Rather wasted. [Drawing by Dr. Hay Fleming.] 15. 1571. On Inn at Bosbury, Herefordshire. TABLE XXIII. GERMAN MONUMENTAL, ETC.

1. 1388. Ulm. Tombstone of Cunrat Riter. Verhandl. des Vereins f. Kunst u. Alterthum in Ulm u. Oberschwaben, vi (1874), pp. xiv f.; Anzeiger, 1876, 35; Wattenbach, Lat. Pal., p. 101; The Scottish Antiquary, vi (1892), p. 132. The stone was found some feet deep in a cemetery which had not been used since 1530.
2. 1406. Salteins, Vorarlberg. Inscription on tabernacle. M.C.C., N.F. xxii, p. 31. The date is written +146+.
3. 1414. Pettau. Inscription on a bracket. M.C.C., N.F. vi, pp. cxii, cxiv.
4. 1439. Nürnberg. Lorenzkirche. Anzeiger, 1861, 49.
5. 1441. Freising. Choir-stalls from Stiftskirche of St. Veit. M.C.C. viii, p. 250. An excellent instance of the sort of date that can be read 1001.
6. 1446. Pettau. Stall. M.C.C., N.F. vi, p. cxliv.
7. 1451. Wiener Neustadt. Gravestone of Anna Roll, wife of Johann Roll, who was Bürgermeister of Neustadt 1467-1471. Ströhl, Herald. Atlas, text to pl. lxvi, fig. 4. The date of Roll's tenure of office does not of course prove that the date is 1471 rather than 1451.
8. 1453. Würzburg, Dom. Coat of arms of Jörg von Bebenburg. After Salver, Proben des hohen Deutschen Reichs-Adels, Taf. XVII. 65. Salver's facsimile is incorrect, and this should be corrected by Table XXVIII, no. 3.
9. 1454. Grätz. Tombstone in Franciscan monastery. M.C.C., N.F. xvi, p. 75.
10. 1454. Nördlingen. Over porch of tower of Georgenkirche. Anzeiger, 1861, 153. The reading 1474 has been suggested; but this form of 7 is not likely at so early a date (see nos. 15-22 in this Table, and 1, 2, 13, 14 in the next.)
11. 1458. Ulm. Oak singing-desk by Jörg Sürlin. Anzeiger, 1861, p. 49. See Berichte des Kunst- und Alterthumsvereins von Ulm und Oberschwaben, 1844, p. 17.
12. 1464. Villach. On choir-stall in church. M.C.C., xv, p. 173; cp. iii, p. 127.
13. 1465. Feldkirch. On a house in the Marktgasse. M.C.C., N.F. viii, p. lxxi.
14. 1466. Friesach. Stone built into a house. M.C.C., N.F. xxii, p. 169.
15. 1467. Wiener Neustadt. Gravestone of Empress Eleonora in Cistercian Abbey of Neukloster. By Nicolaus Lerch of Leyden, M.C.C. xiv, p. 103.
16. 1470. Garsten. Tomb of Rudolf von Losenstein in the Losenstein Chapel. M.C.C., N.F. v, p. xliii. The monument bears the dates 1449 and 1470; the latter is probably the date of its erection or of the death of Rudolf's wife Magdalena.
17. 1470. Ulm. Carved on a roof-beam on N. side of nave of the Minster. Anzeiger, 1861, 231. Rather 1470 than 1450, since the short stroke of the doubtful sign turns so definitely downwards.
18. 1470. Hall. Katharinenkirche. Anzeiger, 1861, 85, 153. This has also been read 1450, but 1470 is to be preferred for the same reason as in the preceding example.
19. 1473. Ulm. Cut in stone over door of the Dürftige Stube in the hospital. Anzeiger, 1861, 84.
20. 1474. Vienna. Gravestone of Margaretha Kelbel. Ströhl, Heraldischer Atlas, Text zu Taf. LXVI, fig. 5.
21. 1476. Kralitz. Tomb of Vitus de Kralitz. M.C.C., N.F. xxvii (1901), p. 117.
22. 1477. Krems (Lower Austria). Over S. doorway of Church of the Piarists. M.C.C. xi, p. 133.

2. 1479. Marble slab of Sigmund von Eytzing, in parish church of Waidhofen a. d. Ybbs. M.C.C., N.F. i, p. xxxiii.
3. 1480. Tabernacle, St. Lorenz, Lorch. M.C.C. xiii, p. 179.
4. 1480. Brass of Archbishop Jacobus de Senno. Gnesen. From Creeny, Monumental Brasses on the Continent.
5. 1481. On statue of St. Leonhard in church at Kundl (Tyrol). M.C.C., N.F. xvi, p. 149 (fig. 7).
6. 1481. On tabernacle at Röthis (Vorarlberg). M.C.C., N.F. xxii, p. 32.
7. 1482. Brass of Bishop Rudolphus, Breslau. From Creeny, op. cit.
8. 1482. On the so-called Fischkasten at Ulm. Anzeiger, 1861, 83.
9. 1484. Arms of Kilian von Bibra, in the Dom, Würzburg. From Salver, Tab. VII. 21.
10. 1484. Builder's inscr., chapel of St. Agatha on Christberg (on the pass to Dalaas in the Klosterthal). M.C.C., N.F. v, p. 67.
11. 1486. Tombstone of Eitzinger family in parish church, Drosendorf. M.C.C. xvii, p. clv.
12. 1486. Brass of Ernat, Duke of Saxony, at Meiasen. From Creeny, op. cit.
13. 1487. Inscr. on tabernacle at Damöls (Vorarlberg). M.C.C., N.F. v, p. 68; xxii, p. 32.
14. 1487. Gravestone in Church of St. Lorenz, Lorch. M.C.C., N.F. v, p. cxxix.
15. 1488. Brass of Cardinal Nicolas de Cusa, at Cues on the Mosel. From Creeny, op. cit.
16. 1488. Gravestone at Friesach. M.C.C., N.F. viii, p. 114.
17. 1490. Choir-stalls, Spitalkirche, Stuttgart. Anzeiger, 1861, 231.
18. 1491. On corbel under tabernacle in church of the Benedictines at Odenburg. M.C.C. viii, p. 343.
19. 1491. Builder's mark in church at Hüttenberg (Kärnten). M.C.C., N.F. xxiii, p. 110 and plate.
20. 1492. On tomb of King Kazimierz Jagiellończyk at Krakau, by Veit Stosz. M.C.C. xiii, p. li.
21. 1493. Gravestone of Anna Hoffer at Schwatz. M.C.C., N.F. xxiii, p. 40.
22. 1493. Gravestone of Johann Lenberg in church at Reichersberg in the Innviertel. M.C.C., N.F. v, p. xcvi.
23. 1495. On tabernacle at Egg (Vorarlberg). M.C.C., N.F. xxii, p. 33. The doubtful figure has been read as 7, but I think there can be no doubt that it is a 5.

At Kuttenberg in Bohemia, in the tower-chamber of the old Münsterberg house. M.C.C. vi, 318. The 7 seems to be clear. 9. 1497, written m-cccc-97. Tomb of Wolfgang Hellcampf at Efferding im Hausruck viertel. M.C.C., N.F. vi, p. xlvi. The doubtful figure might possibly be meant for a 5. 10. 1497. Dates on the tombstone of Jörg von Teuffenbach (died 1497) and his family at Teuffenbach in Steiermark. M.C.C., N.F. xvii, p. 226, and Beilage xv, fig. 3. 11. 1498. Brass of Bishop Uriel, Posen. From Creeny, op. cit. 12. 1499. St. Jacob's, Villac. The dates 1487 and 149 ? occur on the gravestone of Wolfgang and Jeronima Leininger; the former died in 1499, the latter in 1487. M.C.C. xix, p. 144. 13. 1499. Grätz, Hauszeichen on outside of Dom. M.C.C. xix, p. 122. 14. 1499. Gravestone at Ungarisch-Hradisch. M.C.C., N.F. xxiii, p. 102. 15. 1499. Tabernacle in Leechkirche, Grätz. M.C.C. iv, p. 219. 16. 1499. Tombstone of Eitzinger family at Drosendorf (not earlier than 1501). M.C.C. xvii, p. clvi. 17. 1499, written 1499. Signature of Veit Stosz on relief of Kiss of Judas in Church of St. Sebaldus, Nürnberg (on the scabbard of one of the Orientals). Anzeiger, 1862, 403. This is rightly explained as a date by Lepkowski, M.C.C. xii, p. lxxxv. 18. 1500. Arms of Georg Fuchs von Wonfurt. Dom, Würzburg. Salver, Tab. III, 8. 19. 1500. Arms of Barth. von Reie. 13. 1528. Salzburg. Tombstone of Hans Reuter von Klebing. [Reference mislaid.]
14. 1529. Enns im Traunviertel, Austria. Gravestone of Erasmus Paumkirchner. M.C.C., N.F. vii, p. cviii.
15. 1533. Wolfsberg. Tombstone of G. von Streitberg. M.C.C., N.F. xviii, p. 150. Note the two forms of 3, one of which might almost be taken for a 2. The 1 is somewhat confused with the preceding ornamental stop.
16. 1534. Clay water-pipe from Bochtitz. M.C.C., N.F. xxi, p. 50.
17. 1534. Weikelsdorf near Zeitz. On a pillar of the church (beginning of XVI cent.). Anzeiger, 1863, 322. The interpretation is not quite sure, the inscription being a freak. There is a still worse instance in the church at Langendorf, near Zeitz (ib. p. 323), which has been read 1531 or 1571, although it is difficult to make anything at all out of it.
18. See XXVI. 23.
19. 1537. Regensburg. Sandstone slab outside Church of St. Emmeran. L. Day, Lettering in Ornament, after Gerlach u. Schenk, Monum. Schriften.
20. 1541. Nürnberg. Bronze epitaph. L. Day, Lettering in Ornament, p. 54, after Gerlach u. Schenk, Bronce-Epithaphen der Friedhöfe zu Nürnberg.
21. 1542. Brunn. Tombstone (in Dom) of Michael of Regensburg and his wife, bearing dates 1519 and 1542, all probably of the latter date. M.C.C., N.F. xix, p. 133.
22. 1542. Raigern. Gravestone of Abbot Ambrosius. M.C.C., N.F. xxi, p. 123, where the date is described as 1542 corrected to 1540; from the illustration it would appear that the last sign is merely a 2 with ornamental serifs.

TABLE XXVIII. GERMAN MONUMENTAL, ETC.

(SUPPLEMENTARY, 1383-1492).

1. 1383. Wertheim. Outside nave of the Evangelical Church. Mr. G. H. Lockner, who supplies the rubbing, questions the antiquity of the date; but the forms are excellent.
 2. 1419. Wertheim. Outside tower of Evangelical Church. [Rubbing by G. H. L.]
 3. 1453. Würzburg. Dom, Arms of Jörg von Bebenburg. [Tracing by G. H. L.] This is given less correctly in Table XXIII. 8, from Salver's Proben.
 4. 1454. Ulm. Choirstall by Jörg Sürlin. [Drawing by P. G.] Cp. also Table XXIII. 11.
 5. 1457. Würzburg Museum. On the back of a wooden Madonna. The date has been doubted, as it seems to me, without reason. [G. H. L.]
 6. 1476. Randersacker near Würzburg, parish church. [Tracing by G. H. L.]
 7. 1476. Berne. Sepulchral slab in N. aisle of the Minster. [Drawing by Mr. Warwick Wroth.]
 8. 1477. Rothenburg an der Tauber. Arms of Hornburg on a house, Herrenstr. no. 46. [G. H. L.]
 9. 1481. Near Würzburg, on road to Veitshöchheim; on an expiatory cross by Hans Hofsteter in wall of a vineyard. See Denzinger, p. 171. [G. H. L.]
 10. 1482. Würzburg. Arch of door of old Rathaus. [G. H. L.]
 11. 1484. Coire. Tabernacle in Cathedral. [G. B. C.-L.]
 12. 1484. On a stone formerly in the possession of the Historischer Verein, now in the Fränkisches Museum at Würzburg, with a scene from St. Luke i. 26 ff. [Rubbing by G. H. L.] See Denzinger, p. 170. The 8 is broken away below.
 13. 1484. St. Gallen. Stone-relief with Standeswappen. [Photograph from P. G.]
 14. 1486. Wertheim a. M., near; monument on path to Vockenrod. [G. H. L.]
 15. 1487. Strassburg, St. Thomas. Gravestone in left aisle, third chapel. [Drawing by P. G.]
 16. 1489. Zug. Relief in Hauptplatz with figure of Wild Man. [Drawing by P. G.]
 17. 1490. Würzburg. Arms of Canon Pankraz von Redwitz in old 'Domherrnhof Tannenberg'. [Drawing by G. H. L.]
 18. 1490. Würzburg. On house 'Zum Leibrich', now Dettelbachergasse Nr. 3. [Drawing by G. H. L.]
 19. 1492. Maigrange (Magerau). Gravestone of Abbess Jeanne de Colombier. [Drawing by P. G.]
 20. 1492. Wertheim. Rathaus, outside wall. [Rubbing by G. H. L.]
- The form of the 1 is not clear to me.

TABLE XXX. GERMAN SEALS.

1. 1331. City of Heidingsfeld am Main. Anseiger, 1859, 249. On this date, which is not contemporary, see the list of doubtful instances, p. 23.
2. 1351 (Archaeol. lxii, pl. XIX, no. 5). City of Ulm. Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. 'Sigillum secretum civium in ulma 1351.' Anseiger, 1859, p. 250; Verhandl. des Vereins für Kunst u. Alterthum in Ulm u. Oberschwaben, vi (1874), pp. xiv f.
3. 1368. Johann I, Landgraf zu Leuchtenberg. Anseiger, 1859, 373. Impressions in the K. bayer. Reichsarchiv.
4. 1369. Hermann der Rot von Ulm. Anseiger, 1861, 153; 1869, 326 (illustrated). It is noted that the form of the shield is unusual at this time.
5. 1405. This is apparently the date on an obscure seal of the city of Wimpfen in the Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. Archaeol. lxii, pl. XIX, no. 4. The legend appears to be 'S. Secreti (sic) Oppidi Wimpfensis 1405'. The 5 is like a modern 2 set on its side. This may be the seal which is described in Anseiger, 1859, p. 250, as reading 1426.
6. 1412. Johann, Abbot of Kaisersheim. Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. Anseiger, 1859, p. 251. Archaeol. lxii, pl. XIX, no. 6. 'Sigillum iohannis abbatis in cesarea h (?)'. The date 1412 is in the field. This is Johann Scherb, eighteenth abbot, 1405-1423.
7. 1425. Propst Ulrich in den Wengen. Anseiger, 1861, p. 82.
8. 1429. Bishop Albrecht II of Eichstädt. Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. Anseiger, 1859, p. 251. Archaeol. lxii, pl. XIX, no. 3.
9. 1433. Monastery of St. Oswald. Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. Archaeol. lxii, pl. XIX, no. 7. '1433. s. conventus monasterij s. oswaldi canonicorum regular.' In Anseiger, 1859, p. 251, this is described as a seal of the Monastery of Niederaltaich. St. Oswald's, however, was an Augustinian house, near Gravenau in the diocese of Passau, though it seems to have been in some way dependent on the Benedictine house at Niederaltaich. On this seal the arms of the house are simply [as.] a fess [arg.]; above the shield is a raven holding a ring in its beak. Sibmacher, Klöster, p. 67, Taf. 83, gives a later version of the arms.
10. 1433. City of Stuttgart. 'S. civium in Stuohtgarten.' Anseiger, 1861, p. 84. See Pfaff in Württemb. Jahrbücher, 1854, 2, p. 178.
11. 1436. City of Heidelberg. In use on documents from 1436 to 1501. See A. von Weech, Siegel der badischen Städte, pl. xviii.
12. 1440. City of Grätz. M.C.C. xvi, p. cxl. Cp. J. Wartinger, Privilegien der Hauptstadt Graz (1836), p. ii.
13. 1444. Seal of a member of the family of Riedtheim, Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. Anseiger, 1859, p. 250. The name is there given as Ludwig von Rietheim, which I cannot decipher on the impression before me. Possibly the name is Ulric (Udalric), since an Udalric of Riedtheim was in existence at this time (Bucelinus, Germania, vol. i, under Riedtheim).
14. 1444. Seal of Monastery of Holy Trinity, Wiener Neustadt. Jahrb. k. k. Centr.-Comm. für Erforsch. u. Erh. der Baudenkmale, iii (1859), p. 238.
15. 1(44)4. Seal of city of Wetzlar, Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. 'Secretū civitatis wetzlarieſis ad causas 1[44]4.' Anseiger, 1859, p. 250.
16. 1446. Seal reading 'Nicolaus Grünwalt pp. ad(?) Sot(?)'. Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. Anseiger, 1859, p. 251 ('Kloster Grünwald').
17. 1446. Albert VI of Austria. M.C.C. xv, p. 37.
18. 1450. Seal of Imperial Landgericht (provincialis burggraviatus) in Nürnberg. Germ. Mus., Nürnberg. Anseiger, 1859, p. 251. This is given (wrongly) as 1420 in Anseiger, 1861, p. 230.
19. 1450+. Friedrich III. No space allowed for the fourth numeral. Cp. the book-plate of 1470 of Johannes, priest of St. Moritz in Augaburg (above, p. 20).
20. 1452. Seal of the Provincial of the Franciscan Order for Austria and Styria. M.C.C. xix, p. 260.
21. 1453. City of Krems. Melly, no. 46, pl. viii; M.C.C. xvii, p. xxiii.

TABLE XXXVII. GERMAN PAINTINGS, 1435-1508.

1. 1435. Altar-piece by Lukas Moser at Tiefenbronn. Anzeiger, 1861, pp. 49 and 83; Jahrb. der Kunstgesch. Gesellsch. f. photogr. Publikationen, v (1899). It has been read 1431 and even 1451; the latter is highly improbable. If the artist wished to vary the form of his 1, he would be more likely to ornament the numeral on its first than on its second occurrence; the first numeral is often decorated, like an initial letter. The fourth numeral here is thus probably not 1, and it can hardly be anything but 5. 2. 1446. Heraldic painting ('Handregistratur' of King Friedrich IV), Vienna. Ströhl, Herald. Atlas, pl. xxviii. 3, 4. 1449. D. Pfenning. Vienna, 1396. 5. 1483. Hungarian School. Budapest, 9. 6, 7. 1487, 1488. Paintings on side-altars in St. Martin's Chapel near Ludesch. M.C.C., N.F. xviii, p. 236. 8. 1491. Monogrammist R. F. Vienna, 1398. 9. 1493. Dürer. Portrait of himself, formerly in the Felix Collection. Cust, Dürer Engravings, p. 21. 10. 1498. Dürer. Portrait. Prado. 11. 1499. Dürer. Portrait of Hans Tucher. Grand-Ducal Museum, Weimar. From Dürer Society's Reproduction. 12. 1503. Dürer. Vienna, 1442. 13. 1504. Lucas Cranach the Elder. Berlin, 564 A. 14. 1506. Dürer. Berlin, 557 F. 15. 1506. Dürer. Dresden, 1870. 16. 1507. Dürer. Vienna, 1444. 17. 1507. Dürer. Berlin, 577, 1. 18. 1507. Albrecht Altdorfer. Berlin, 638. The date occurs twice on the picture. 19. 1507. Albrecht Altdorfer. Berlin, 638 A. Note the 3-like form of 5. 20. 1508. Meister des Marienlebens. Cologne, 141. 21. 1508. Dürer. Vienna, 1446.

TABLE XXXIX. GERMAN PAINTINGS (SUPPLEMENTARY).

1. 1452. German painting (1580-'5; Annunciation) in the Victoria and Albert Museum. Communicated by Mr. Eric MacLagan. The date is written on a tablet. It has generally been read 1472, but there can be no doubt that the figure which has been taken for a 7 is a 5. 2. 1457. Lyons Museum. [Drawing by G. B. C.-L.] 3. 1457. Basel Museum, no. 473. [Drawing by E. M.] 4. 1458. Basel Museum, no. 465. [Drawing by E. M.] 5. 1460. Constanx, portrait of Blarer. 6. 1483. Munich. Burgkmair, portrait of Martin Schongauer. 7. 1507. Augsburg. Burgkmair, Coronation of the Virgin. 8. 1511. Basel Museum, no. 21. [Drawing by E. M.]

TABLE XLVIII. LOW COUNTRIES: COINS, ETC.

From coins in the British Museum, supplemented by illustrations in Van der Chiis.

1, 4, 6 are from coins of Utrecht. The last might possibly be read 1487, but the distinct curve in the tail of the doubtful figure suggests that we have an analogy to the German 5; in other cases (as Table L. 2 and 6) the form of 5 is still nearer to the modern 7. Compare also the Gelderland forms, Tables XLIX. 15 and L. 16. 2, 7, 14 are from coins of Brabant. 3, 5, 9, 11, 13 are from coins of Holland. 8, 15 are from coins of Friesland. 10 is from a coin of Gelderland. 12, 16 are from Flemish jetons.

TABLE XLIX. LOW COUNTRIES: COINS, ETC.

From specimens in the British Museum, supplemented by Van der Chiis.

1. Medal of Archbishop Schevez of St. Andrews. The general belief that this medal is of Flemish origin is confirmed by evidence brought together by Dr. R. F. Burckhardt of Basel, in the Anzeiger für schweizerische Altertumskunde, N.F. xiii, pp. 42-46. Schevez was out of Scotland, on a journey to Rome, at the time the medal was made. 2, 15 are from coins of Gelderland. For the 'German' 5 in the latter compare Table XLVIII. 6. 3, 5, 9 are from coins of Utrecht. 4, 8, 10, 20, 21 are from jetons. In No. 10 the two forms of 4 are not on the same piece, but on two different jetons of the same year. 6 is from the Montagu specimen of the so-called 'Perkin Warbeck groat', which, there can be little doubt, was struck in Flanders, and is not a coin, but some sort of jeton. Franks and Grueber, Medallic Illustrations, i, p. 21, no. 3. 7, 12 are from coins of Holland. 11, 19 are from coins of Friesland. 13, 14, 17, 18 are from coins of Brabant. 16 is from a coin of Luxemburg.

TABLE L. LOW COUNTRIES: COINS, ETC.

From specimens in the British Museum, supplemented by Van der Chiis.

1, 4, 7, 12, 14 are from coins of Brabant. 2, 6, 8 are from coins of Utrecht. The form of 5 on nos. 2 and 6 has already been noticed (Table XLVIII. 6). 3, 5, 9, 11, 13, 15, 17-22 are from jetons. The last is given as an instance of a form of 5 which might easily be mistaken for 3. 10, 16 are from coins of Gelderland, the latter showing the 'German' 5.

1. 1451. Flemish painting (Angel of the Annunciation), in 1910 in the possession of the Spanish Art Gallery. Although the forms seem flatly to contradict most of the other Flemish evidence, I have included this example. The picture came from Spain. Communicated by Mr. E. MacLagan. 2. 1487. Memlinc, Uffizi 769. [Baron C. A. de Cosson.]

TABLE LIII. FRENCH MEDALS.

1. 1485. Aimar de Prie. From the Paris specimen. I have placed this among the French medals, although it has some affinities with N. Italian work. But I can find no evidence of Aimar de Prie's having visited Italy so early as 1485. The medal has been attributed to a later date, and I am less inclined than I was in the first edition of these tables to agree with Friedländer (Die geprägten Medaillen, p. 15) that it was struck so early as 1485. 2. 1486. Charles de Bourbon. British Museum. Cast. 3. 1493. Charles VIII and Anne de Bretagne. British Museum. Struck at Lyons; the work of Louis Lepère, Nicolas de Florence, and Jean Lepère. 4. 1494. Medal issued at Vienne on the birth of the Dauphin, Charles-Orland. See Heiss, Niccolò Spinelli, etc., p. 53; Mazerolle, Les Médailleurs français, pl. ii. 5. 1499. Lyons medal of Louis XII and Anne de Bretagne. Cast. 6. 1512. François I. Trésor de Numismatique, Méd. fr. i, pl. x. 1. Possibly not French. 7. 1512. Florimond Robertet. Op. cit. i, pl. xliii. 3. 1. Mid. XV. cent. Majolica roundels of the Montha, by Luca della Robbia, in the Victoria and Albert Museum. These show the characteristic Italian forms of the time. The figures in July are restored, and the fraction may possibly have once been $\frac{1}{2}$. My attention was called to these by Mr. E. D. MacLagan, who informs me that the roundels must date before about 1460, or 1464 at the latest. 2. 1487. Faenza. Fortnum, Majolica p. 89. See also Molinier, La Céram. ital. au XV^e siècle, p. 47. Incised on the model. There is no reason to doubt its contemporaneity. 7. c. 1460. Antonio Roselli, by Bartolommeo Bellano. From the British Museum specimen. The figures 91 cannot indicate Roselli's age if, as seems to be the fact, he died, aged 85, on Dec. 10, 1466. See Semrau, Donatello's Kanzeln, p. 151. 8. 1461. Taddeo Manfredi, by Enzola. From the British Museum specimen. 9. 1464. Paul II. From the Paris specimen. Although this medal is made from one of Paul's medals of 1455, when he was Cardinal of San Marco, by reworking the model, there is no reason to suppose that it is not contemporary with the date which it bears. 10. 1470. Galeazzo Maria Sforza, perhaps by Caradosso. Friedländer, Ital. Schaumünzen, pl. xxxvi. 11. 1472. Ercole I d'Este, by Baldassare Estense. Heiss, Niccolò, etc., pl. v. 1. 12, 13. 1479. Medals by Candida of Jehan Miette and Jean Carondelet respectively. The occurrence of the old form of 4 on these medals by an Italian is explained by their having been made at Lille and Paris. The same fact accounts for the old 7 on no. 12. But the new 7 occurs on no. 13; compare the variation on the coins of the Low Countries about this time, Table XLVII. 9 ff. 14. 1481. (See also Table LXIV. nos. 13, 16).

1. So-called 'Tarocchi of Mantegna'. From series in the British Museum. These are not really playing cards. The first series (according to the arrangement adopted in the British Museum) is as early as 1467; the second (see no. 2, and the 6 and 7 in no. 1) may be 10 to 20 years later. But according to Kristeller this supposed second series is really the first. Apart from other reasons against this inverted arrangement, it may be noted that the numerals in the 'Arithmetic' are more likely to have been added than removed in a second series. On these engravings see A. M. Hind, Catalogue of Early Italian Engravings in the British Museum, p. 224. 2. On a tablet held by figure of Arithmetic, on the so-called Tarocchi cards (one of the copies; the original series is without it). The tablet gives the numerals from 1 to 10, and abbreviations which have been read as a date 14085, but which seem to represent a sum of money (perhaps L(ire) 40 S(oldi)5). From a specimen in the British Museum. 3. 1478. Treviso Arithmetic. D. E. Smith, Rara Arithm., pp. 5, 6. 4. 1479. Venice, J. Marchesinus, Mammotrectus. British Museum, 1 A 19729. 5. 1484. Venice, Regiomontanus, Ephemerides. British Museum, 1 A 20533. Practically, if not identically, the same forms as in the 1482 Venice Regiomontanus (Mr. Lewis Evans's copy). 6. 1491. From Calander's Arithmetic, Florence, 1491. D. E. Smith, op. cit., p. 47. 7. 1492. From Pellos's Arithmetic, Turin, 1492. Smith, op. cit., p. 51. 8. 1509. Italian engraving (Paris and 'Egenoe') after a German original, which accounts for the forms, especially of the 5. British Museum, v. 1-44.

Arch.* (1910), p. 723. 3. 1390, 25 June. Verona, San Zeno. Graffito. [E. M.] 4. 1391. Painting (triptych) by Spinello Aretino at Florence. Virgin and Child and SS. Paulinus, John Baptist, Andrew, and Matthew. In relief below central panel. From a photograph. [A. H. S. Y.] Lettering is the same as on the Virgin's halo; the inscr. appears to be HOC . OPVS . PINXIS SPINELLVS . LVCE . ATITIO . IO . I . A . 1391. Mr. Yeames remarks that it may have been added or touched up at a later date, but has not that appearance. 5. 1396. Verona, Museo Civico. Fragment of Inscription. [G. B. C.-L.] 6. 1397. Lucca, Nuovo Ospedale Civile, on slab let into wall. [W. A.] 7. 1412. Florence, San Marco. Armorial tablet of Segni-Guidi family in cloister. 8. 1423. Venice, SS. Paolo e Giovanni. monument of Tommaso Mocenigo. See Friedländer, Period. di Numism. i, p. 146. [From a squeeze supplied by the architect of St. Mark's through Mr. Horatio Brown]. 9. 1423. Mantua, Castello. Tablet on wall, recording building of that portion. [G. B. C.-L.] 10. 1427. Florence, Badia. Sepulchral roundel in cloister. S' . DOMINI . ROSSI . ANDREOSI . GIOVANNI . FIL' . 1427. 11. 1428. Oxford, Ashmolean Museum: 'formato a di 17 di gienaio 1428, formato nel Gabinetto (?) di Nicholo in gesso.' Scratched in the wet stucco on the back of a stucco relief in the Fortnum collection. The relief has been condemned, but without reason; consulted about the inscription, both Sir George Warner and Mr. Herbert independently, and without seeing the date, pronounced it to be of the XV cent. See Bode, Florentiner Bildhauer (1902), p. 162; Florentine Sculptors (London, 1908), p. 97, where it is assigned to Luca della Robbia. Other references, kindly supplied by Mr. C. F. Bell, are M.
